Swimming is one of the best ways of improving your health and making you taller.

When you swim you must fully stretch out both your arms and legs when you swim, if you don't stretch out then you will sink and drown. So anyway swimming is one of the most healthiest sports and exercises around as you are constantly battling the water to move forward or back. The water also gives you a slight resistance as well so when you stretch out it is harder than you would on dry land in open air.

Swimming can also improve cardio fitness and helps your heart improving circulation and circulation is needed to pump human growth hormone to different parts of your body which really helps with increasing your height.

There are loads of different places where you can go swimming you can even go swimming with your friends to make it even more fun.

With a good balanced diet and regular exercise and swimming you may see noticeable results with your height, but if you want instant results for increasing your height you could always use some height increasing insoles that as soon as you put them on will increase your height. the choice is yours!
